Trendy drapery!

Look at the size of these sleeves! This type of soft and loose dress, fastened with a belt, was the ultimate trend at the Chinese court during the 8th century! Although it is quite simple, this dress is very elegant.

Welcome to the Welby's!

Mr and Mrs Welby love sophisticated outfits and beautiful accessories!

Can you find a black feather, pearls and gilded buttons in this painting?

The Welbys must be part of high society – as you can tell from their fine clothes and jewellery.

Keep warm!

Look carefully at the heavy dress this woman is wearing. Can you identify any diamond-shaped patterns on it?

This shape is a common feature of woolen dresses in ancient Central Asia. It would have been a warm dress for cold winters.

Who is the boss?

The Pharaoh, ruler of Ancient Egypt, can be recognised by his false beard and royal headdress.

Look how impressive he appears with these accessories. They symbolise authority and express his importance.

Wrap up!

This man is wearing only one long piece of cloth, 4 to 6 metres in length, wrapped around his body.

This traditional Roman garment, called a toga, shows us that this man is probably a very important public figure!

Shine!

Can you see two animals with horns in this Emirati pendant?

If you look closer, you can see that the horns form loops. These were probably used to hang the pendant from a pearl necklace.

Pin it!

This brooch is shaped like a bird. Which bird is it?

Two brooches like this one were often used together to fasten clothes, such as robes or cloaks.
