

SUMMER CHALLENGE

COLOUR CODES

اللوفر أبوظبي
LOUVRE ABU DHABI

ARE YOU READY FOR SUMMER CHALLENGE WEEK SEVEN?

This week, artworks that focus on colour and pattern inspire our art activities and art challenge.

How do we communicate with colours and patterns?

Colour is one of the most important elements in art. Pattern, repeated design, is another. You can create patterns using combinations of colour, shapes or a mixture of both.

Artists and designers often utilize colour and pattern to communicate information and evoke different feelings. Both of these elements can influence our emotions and behaviours.

Almost all artists use colour and patterns in their artworks to communicate emotions or ideas to share their message with the viewers.

What is your favourite colour? How does it make you feel?

What colours or patterns do you see around you?

Do you link a colour or pattern to a memory or a place?

Let's look at artworks in our permanent collection connected to colours and patterns.

What primary colours do you mix to get Indigo?

This page is from a copy of a Quran written on a material called Vellum. A type of paper made from the skin of a calf, dyed in a shade of Indigo blue with writing inscribed in gold. The deep blue colour represents the universe and the golden letters represent the divine light spread by the word of God.

ANTHROPOMETRY BY YVES KLEIN

What colour would you make and name after yourself?

Yves Klein and his wife, Rotraut, made a canvas painting using their bodies and their own unique colour. Yves Klein developed and patented the shade of ultramarine blue and called it International Klein Blue (IKB).

MEDALLION CARPET

How many different colours can you see?

This carpet comes from Ushak, a city in Turkey. It shows star shaped medallions, yellow peonies and plant motifs that contrast against a midnight blue background. Rulers in the past greatly prized carpets such as these.
